Dining Hall

"The new dining hall will be the most important building constructed at Millbrook since the chapel."

So said Gil Schafer '80, chairman of the Physical Resources Committee of the Board of Trustees, when presenting this new facility for their consideration. He was exactly right. In a school where everything we teach is in the context of community, the dining hall is where the community—students, faculty and staff and their families—gather multiple times every day.

Construction of the 12,000 square foot dining hall was completed under budget and two months in advance of the target date, allowing the class of 2016 and their parents to enjoy their Senior Dinner in this beautiful new space. Shortly thereafter, alumni who returned for reunion festivities in early June were amazed at how the new building, so beautiful and substantial, is seamlessly integrated into the campus they remember. Upon the opening of school in September, students and faculty alike were thrilled with the new facility, and, as anticipated, it is at the center of the Millbrook community.

Headmaster Drew Casertano spoke at the first seated advisor lunch, a new addition to the schedule this year: "The new dining hall represents our values in every way—from being built and designed to the highest environmental standards, to being directly linked to the campus farm. And with our enrollment now over 300, we are enjoying this new facility daily."
